Design and Choose the Perfect Yard Sign Size Signage 101: Yard Signs does my real estate property need? One or two signs are enough, as long as they are placed in an unobstructed location where they can be easily spotted by passersby. Make sure that the text is legible enough to be read from a distance. For reference, a 1-inch-high letter can be seen from 40 to 50 feet away. If you want your custom real estate yard signs are made from 4 mm. corrugated plastic. The mounting accessories such as wire stakes and frames are metal while our real estate posts are made from PVC plastic. Are real estate yard signs weatherproof? Yes, they are. Yard signs made from every use high-quality UV ink so your message remains clear as day regardless of the weather! What should I put on my real estate yard signs to attract new customers? Use vibrant colors and eye-catching graphics and combine them with large and readable text that your audience can see easily from a distance and different angles. Keep your message simple and short since most people don't have much time to read too much information. How do I choose the effective wording for a real estate sign? Make sure you focus on one simple message. For example, if you're selling a property, highlight the words FOR SALE, or if you want potential buyers to view it without an appointment, ensure that your sign's focal message is Open House. Additionally, present an action you want them to do, convey it clearly. How do I choose the right font for my real estate yard sign? Use fonts that are simple and easy to read from a distance. However, make sure that you also consider the length of your message and brand guidelines. For example, Gotham, Helvetica, and Garamond will complement most brand style guides. Meanwhile, Franklin Gothic and Trajan work well with signs with a short headline executed in capital letters. How do I choose the right size for real estate yard signs? The ideal dimension for yard signs depends primarily on the distance between the signs and the readers. For instance, smaller signs (e.g., 18" H x 24" W) work well with residential settings and local events because they mainly target passers by, whereas medium (e.g., 24" H x 36" W) and oversized signs (e.g., 48" H x 72" W) offer increased visibility to both vehicles and foot traffic. Do you have a real estate yard sign design templates can help you create yard signs? Yes, we have plenty of templates specifically designed for real estate. These design templates can help you create yard signs? Depending on your location, there may be size and content restrictions you should keep in mind prior to installing a yard sign on your personal property. Remember to secure any necessary permits from your local or city council if you plan on using temporary signs on public spaces such as sidewalks. To avoid hefty fines and other issues, check with your municipal code libraries, zoning department, or local government website for any rules and regulations on yard signs, directional signs, open house signs, and rider signs, which are smaller than the main sign. What are the best materials for real estate yard signs? The 4 mm corrugated plastic with UV- and water-resistant properties is the best material for real estate yard signs. When partnered with weatherproof ink and durable wire stakes and metal frames, your signs can last two years or more of outdoor use. Where can I find customizable templates for yard signs? Visit Signs.com and click the yard sign page where you can choose from various real estate design templates available in our library. You can fill in the information you want to display and print and change the colors if you wish. You can fill in the information you want to display and print and styled correctly. What are some tips for designing an effective yard sign? You want your audience to read the most important information as quickly as possible. Thus, your yard sign should only include one primary message (e.g., for sale or open house), your logo, and contact details. Other best practices you must keep in mind: Use large and easy-to-read fonts, contrasting colors (e.g., dark texts and light background), and enough white space (ideally comprising around 30-40 percent of your design area). Order by 9PM EST and we'll have your business, office, or home. We guarantee you'll love your custom car and truck lettering. If you spaced and pre-masked with transfer tape that makes installation a simple, all-at-once process. Follow the step-by-step instructions below for a fast application: Thoroughly clean and dry the surface of your car or truck where the decal will be installed. Apply a horizontal strip of masking tape to the top of the graphic with the top half of the tape on the intended surface, creating a hinge. Note: Designs with three or more colors will require you to place individually colored layers on your vehicle. Two vinyl dots (one in the upper left corner and one in the bottom right corner of each layer) will be used to help align individual layers. Hold the bottom edge of the hinged graphic away from the intended surface and remove the back liner, revealing the sticky backing of your lettering. Be careful not to allow the exposed adhesive to touch the surface. If creases develop, carefully lift the graphic and place it again. Work from top to bottom and left left and bottom right corners to ensure proper alignment and installation. The video below shows the installation process for 1 and 2 color vinyl lettering. Download or Print Vehicle Lettering is not ideal for pressurized car lettering. After cutting out the general shapes of the letters or object, the production team employs manual weeding also known as picking to cut out any internal spaces. This is what allows vehicle lettering to be cut to the exact shape. No printing is used when producing car and truck lettering. If you are interested in having your graphic printed onto vinyl with unlimited color options or gradients, you can check out our vehicle decals. What is weeding or picking? Weeding (picking) is the process in which the internal spaces of a letter, shape, or object are cut out. For example, whenever a "D" or a "B" is a part of an order for vinyl lettering, the external shape of the letter is first cut from a sheet of How does vinyl car and truck lettering differ from your other vehicle decals? The main difference between our vinyl lettering and our opaque, clear, and perforated vehicle decals is that the vinyl lettering and our opaque, clear, and perforated vehicle decals is that the vinyl lettering and our opaque, clear, and perforated vehicle decals is that the vinyl lettering and our opaque, clear, and perforated vehicle decals is that the vinyl lettering and our opaque, clear, and perforated vehicle decals all have the design printed directly onto a standard vinyl material. Another major difference is in the cutting options. Vinyl lettering is cut to exact shape (including internal spaces), whereas vehicle decals can only be cut to the general outline of the shape, maintaining a solid background. Are car lettering and car decals the same thing? In the general sense, car decals refer to any type of material with vehicle lettering is made from durable 2-mil (50 micron) vinyl that is designed to last up to 8-10 years (depending on use and climate conditions). The vinyl is self-adhesive and comes in over 35 different colors. What is the default color for the material used for your car and truck lettering? There is no default color for car and truck lettering. Since the lettering is cut directly from a sheet of solid-colored vinyl, the color selected when creating your design is the same color as the vinyl material that is used. That said, most people choose white for the color of their vehicle lettering. In most cases, a white color provides the most contrast and visibility when placed on the window of a car or truck, especially if the window is tinted. What is your vinyl car and truck lettering made of? Our vehicle lettering is made from durable 2 mil (50 micron) vinyl that is designed to last up to 8-10 years (depending on use and climate conditions). The vinyl is self-adhesive and comes in over 35 different colors. Will there be a background or sticker between letters? No, the letters are individually cut but not printed separately. The application tape layer holds the lettering? The thickness of the vinyl material used is .002" (2-mil or 50 microns; about the thickness of half of a sheet of copy paper). This allows the lettering to not protrude from the surface of the vehicle yet still maintain its quality and durability. Is your car and truck lettering is not visible in the dark. As for premium vinyl, our standard vinyl has exceptional quality and has a durability and lifespar sizes to fit your needs. To determine what size your lettering to the rear windows, but because rear windows are unique in size and shape, we highly recommend measuring for the exact size you need. How is the height and width of my vinyl car and truck lettering measured? The height is measured from the lowest-hanging letter. For example, if you were ordering vinyl lettering that said "Signs" the height of your lettering would be measured from the top of the capital letter "S" to the bottom of the "g". Likewise, the width of your lettering's total size, multiply the height by the width of the full design. What are the maximum and minimum dimensions for my vehicle lettering? The minimum size your lettering must be is 1" x 1". Due to our paneling technique, there is no definite maximum size for your vinyl lettering, allowing you to go as big as you like. This allows you to create some very large graphics for placement on large vehicles, such as buses or semi-trucks. Note that if both width and height exceed 24", then you will need to have either your width or height comprised of multiple sheets or panels of vinyl, creating a small seam in the design. If you wish to have no seams in your lettering, then you must keep the dimensions below 24" (2') in one direction (width or height) and 600" (50') in the other direction. When ordering large dimensions, we recommend hiring professionals to install the lettering or getting help from several people. What is stroke width and why should I care? Stroke width and why should I care? individual object that you create in our design tool will each have its own solid color. If you want multiple objects on the design tool. Please note that if your design tool will each have its own solid color. When you receive the vinyl lettering, you'll combine the colors together to install it on the surface. If you are uploading a file, please note that each file uploaded can only have one color applied. For example, if you are trying to create a business logo out of vinyl lettering that incorporates multiple colors, you will need to break up the logo into multiple files based on the color then upload each file separately into our design tool. My design has several different color variations and I want to display it as is on my vehicle. What can I do? If you have a design that uses many colors or if you are wanting exact colors from your design, then we recommend using one of our vehicle decals. Our vehicle decals are printed instead of cut, allowing you to use an unlimited number of colors and color variations/effects. Will the colors on your website match exactly what I want? You can preview all the colors we have available when using our online design tool. If your screen settings are standard, the color you see on screen should be very close to the color you receive with your vehicle lettering. Please note, however, that there may be difference in color due to the difference in computer monitors. If you would like, we are also more than happy to provide you with the official names of the colors we use. As for color matching, this is something that cannot be done with vinyl lettering (unless the color you want is the exact same as one of the colors of vinyl we offer) and is very difficult to achieve even with decals that use printed ink. Even though we do not offer exact color matching, our vehicle decals allow you to use an unlimited number of colors and combinations to help you achieve the look you are wanting. Is the cost of my car and truck vinyl lettering affected by my color choice? Whichever color you choose, the cost for your vehicle lettering will be the same. However, the cost is slightly increased by incorporating multiple colors into one lettering order. This is due to the additional technical work required to create such orders. Can you do graphics or non-letter designs? Yes. Simple graphic or non-letter designs can be created using our cut vinyl. We offer several graphics for you to choose from in our template library. You can also upload a custom image or graphic. Please note that we'll only be able to create each file you upload in one solid color per file. How do I make my business logo out of vinyl lettering? If you would like to create each file you upload in one solid color per file. please upload a file of your logo into our online design tool. Make sure that the file is in vector format (AI, EPS, SVG, or PDF). If you need help making your business logo out of vinyl lettering, please take advantage of our free design services. How do I upload my own custom design? Once you access our online design tool, you will see an icon on the far-left menu that says "Upload". Click on that icon. Be sure to read the uploading requirements carefully. We require all vinyl lettering uploads to be vector artwork and in the file format of AI, EPS, SVG, or PDF. You will then select the file from your computer or mobile phone and upload into our design tool. If you have a custom design that you would like to use but it is not vector artwork be converted into an acceptable format. We will be sure to contact you within 24 hours from the time you submit your request. What is a vector file? A vector is a type of graphic that uses mathematical equations to produce an image made from lines and shapes that can be scaled to any size without the loss of quality or fidelity. Vectors are created in illustration software programs, such as Adobe Illustrator. Vector images are the ideal image type for vehicle lettering because they can be made with a transparent background and are able to be scaled to any size without losing quality or becoming "pixelated". Why won't my uploaded file work? If you are having difficulty uploading your desired file, it is most likely because it is either not vector artwork (not an AI, EPS, SVG, or PDF file), or is over 25 MB in size. If you are having difficulty uploading your file, please contact us or fill out our free design services request form. Does my design impact pricing for my vinyl car and truck lettering? Pricing is slightly influenced by the design of your vehicle lettering. The reason for this is because the more complex the design, the more weeding and manual cutting is required. Do I have to use one of your templates for my vinyl lettering? Not if you don't want to. Our templates are available to help you easily edit and create a brand new design using our online design tool or upload a file you have on hand. What is the estimated lifespan of vinyl lettering for cars and trucks? The estimated lifespan for our vehicle lettering is 8-10 years, depending on use and climate conditions. Our vinyl lettering is 8-10 years, depending on use and climate conditions.

inside your vehicle's window. However, we typically do not recommend inside glass installations because the tinting and reflection of your windows can decrease the visibility of your lettering? No. The material and adhesive used to create our vehicle lettering is free of toxins and is completely safe to use. Does the vinyl lettering have a matte or glossy finish? Your vehicle lettering with a protective laminate? No. Due to our vinyl lettering being cut directly from a sheet durable 2 mil vinyl, a protective laminate is not needed to maintain the lettering's quality and color. Protective laminates are mainly used on decals that are printed with ink. Are there any laws regarding vinyl lettering for cars and trucks? Laws pertaining to vinyl lettering, decals, and stickers on vehicles differ from state to state. However, the consensus among states is that decals and stickers used on the windows of a vehicle must not obstruct the driver's view. Please keep this in mind when creating your custom vehicle lettering. Vehicles used for commercial purposes may have additional laws pertaining to identification and use. What are USDOT numbers? Can I use vehicle lettering for USDOT numbering? USDOT numbers are used for commercial purposes, including transporting passengers or hauling cargo in interstate commerce. USDOT numbers are required in over 30 states and must be applied to a vehicle after the vehicle has gone through the registration process. Our vehicle lettering may be used to create USDOT numbers, if they maintain a height of at least 2". What are the height requirements for USDOT numbering? Are there any other regulations to be aware of? USDOT numbering must be at least 2" in height, with some local governments requiring 3". The color of the lettering may vary but must contrast the colors of your vehicle, making it clearly visible. Alternative fonts may be used if they are clear and legible. Where is the best place on my vehicle to display a USDOT number? USDOT number? used if they are clear and the rear of the vehicle. Some local governments may require specific placement, so please confirm with local authorities or agencies before installing. Usage What are the typical uses of vinyl lettering for cars and trucks? Vehicle lettering is typically used for advertising and promotion, sharing popular messages and sayings, providing business information, displaying artistic designs, and applying USDOT lettering. It is designed for outdoor use on cars, trucks, jeeps, vans, buses, commercial vehicles, motorcycles, dirt bikes, UTVs, off-road vehicles, and truck lettering is intended for one-time use only. We recommend planning the desired location of the lettering prior to application because removing or repositioning is virtually impossible. You can also check out our car and truck magnets. Can I apply this lettering on areas of my vehicle other than windows? Yes. This can be applied on any area of your vehicle, including the sides, doors, rear, hood, trunk, and bumper. Will it ruin or damage the paint on my car? This lettering should not ruin or damage the paint on your vehicle where applied. The adhesive used is designed to be applied and removed easily and does not contain any harmful toxins. However, we recommend that you exercise caution if you are using a sharp object (such as a razor blade) when removing applied car and truck lettering. We also recommend avoiding the use of strong cleaners or chemicals when removing any adhesive residue that may be left after removing the lettering from your vehicle?

anti-reflective. Will my vehicle lettering work on tinted windows? This lettering works great on tinted windows. Be sure to choose a color that contrasts with the windows for maximum visibility of your car and truck lettering. We also recommend placing the lettering on the outside of the window and not inside as people won't see the vehicle lettering for the adhesive to be at the design's front. This lets you apply the lettering from the inside of a window and still be visible from outside. Placing your lettering on the inside of your window will help protect it from harsh elements, allowing it to last longer. It is also a great option if you regularly scrape frost, snow, or ice from your windows. However, we do not recommend this option on tinted or reflective windows. Doing so will make your lettering work on race cars, ATVs, UTVs, motorcycles, or dirt bikes? Yes. Our car and truck lettering works on about every type of vehicle, including vehicles used for off-road purposes. It is also suitable for use on boats, wave acrylic. Avoid using vinyl lettering on areas that are rough or porous such as stucco, cinder blocks, brick, unpainted or unfinished wood, concrete, etc. What is the level of opacity of the vehicle lettering? Our custom vehicle lettering is opaque, meaning that it is not transparent and cannot be seen through. However, a small amount of light may pass through when installed on windows. Generally speaking, the darker the color your lettering is the more opaque your lettering is designed for outdoor use and can last up to eight years with no fading or cracking. This is due to the durable vinyl material used that is and climates. Its lifespan may be slightly affected in these conditions, but the lettering will still last several years with proper installation and care. When installing car and truck lettering on a wet surface may cause the lettering to not adhere to the surface properly. Is vinyl lettering for a short period of time. This should be no longer than 1-2 months. If you wait too long the lettering may begin to lose its adhesive properties and will not be installed properly. We recommend installing your vinyl lettering as soon as possible once you receive it. Once you have applied your vehicle lettering as soon as possible once you receive it.
Care What's the best way to apply my custom vinyl car and truck lettering? Follow the stering of masking tape at the top of the transfer tape on your lettering with half of the strip hanging off. Tape your vehicle lettering in place with the hanging portion of the masking tape on the desired location of your vehicle (creating a hinge). Make sure the lettering is not crooked. From there, start peeling away the backing from your vehicle lettering away from the surface and then peel the backing away. Use a squeegee and press down on the transfer tape from top to bottom. Article Date: September 5, 2024 Share this article Understanding local sign regulations is crucial for any business. It ensures that sign. What is the lifespan of your wood signs? Our wooden signs can last 5+ years with proper care and placement. In many cases the lifespan of these signs is actually much longer. For exterior signs, factors such as size of the sign and climate and exposure to the elements will impact the estimated lifespan of these signs. Alternatively, interior signs should easily last 5+ years due to the lack of constant exposure to the elements. Will the exposure to sun or the elements cause my printing to fade? We print with a UV ink. Thus, the printed portion of the sign shouldn't fade despite the exposure to the sun. Nonetheless, just like any sign, there can be some fading if the sign has been exposed to direct sunlight for an extended period. An optional protective coating can be applied which will increase the protection against UV exposure on your printed wooden sign. Can you cut my wooden sign to a specific shape? Any restrictions? Sure thing! we offer multiple shape options for our wooden signs including: square/rectangle, rounded corners (1/4" or 1" radius), circle/oval, custom (previously known as or sometimes referred to as contour), or custom with border (previously known as or sometimes referred to as halo). We can cut your wooden sign to almost any shape option during the design and ordering process. If for some reason the cut you are requesting is not possible or simply won't look like you may want it to, we will contact you before processing and cutting your wooden signs. What sizes do you offer? What is the maximum and minimum size you offer? We offer several standard sizes for our wood signs. These include 24"x12", 48"x24", 72"x36" and 96"x48". You can enter custom dimensions at the top of this page to get started or within the design tool after selecting one of the templates choices. My design is really detailed and contains a number of colors. Will this increase my cost? The number of colors or your design itself will not increase the price of the sign. Selecting additional options, size, quantity and applicable taxes and/or shipping will impact the price. What is the default color of your wooden sign? The polymer overlay of the wooden sign as described above is white by default. From a side view, you will see a natural wood color. A picture of this can be seen by hovering over the thumbnail featured in our

 "About Our Wooden Signs" section above. Additional pictures can be found in the photo gallery above. Is it possible to make my wood sign double sided? Yes, for an additional cost. Simply select the "Printed Sides" option during the design process. This will ensure that your sign is printed on both sides. If your design differs on the two sides please, select the '2 Sides Different' option and use the "Back Side" button below the design tool to design the back of your sign. Do you print directly onto the surface of the wooden sign. The actual design is not first printed onto a vinyl overlay that is then applied to the wooden sign. This allows for greater durability of the printed graphic or design and a better finish. Does the printed portion of the sign have a glossy or matte finish. Your sign will not have a glare or glossy type finish to it. Nor will it show a wood grain like our wooden prints for the home. These wooden prints that show the grain are for interior use and home decor purposes only. If you select the optional protective laminante under the coating option, your print will have a gloss finish. Will the printed part of my sign peel away? The ink we print with is designed to not fade when exposed to the sun as well as be abrasion resistant. Thus, in day-to-day use the printed portion of your sign shouldn't crack or peel away part of the printed sign that it wouldn't peel away from the sign crack and/or peel away from the sign that it wouldn't peel away part of the printed portion of the printed portion of the sign crack and/or peel away from the sign that it wouldn't peel away part of the printed portion of the printed portion of the sign crack and/or peel away from the sign that it wouldn't peel away part of the printed portion of the printed portion of the sign crack and/or peel away from the sign that it wouldn't peel away part of the printed portion of the printed portion of the sign crack and/or peel away from the sign crack and or peel away still last at least several years even when used exclusively outside. Adding the optional protective laminate is recommended for wooden signs that will be used outdoors. Protective laminate will help preserve the printed design on your wooden signs outside that may be exposed to extreme weather. High winds in particular, can damage even the thickest of wooden signs. Larger signs and those which aren't posted well are particularly susceptible to damage. What are the typical uses of wooden signs? The most common use of wooden signs is for exterior uses typically for branding purposes or for commercial real estate. Wooden signs have proven to be effective and durable solutions for roadside businesses, farms, construction sites, entrances to neighborhoods and apartment complexes and more. Beyond business use, they are often seen in parks and trails, campground sites, golf courses and many more locations. They can also be used as point of purchase signage. These custom wooden signs often give the right mix of durability and professionalism to be placed outside and deliver a great first impression for visitors and potential customers. Will it crack or break if I drop it? Smaller signs should not break when dropped from a reasonable height or while hanging or posting. Larger signs will be more susceptible to breaking or cracking if the fall or drop is significant. Either way, we recommend that more than one person help install larger signs to prevent damage during installation. Installation & Care How do I install/hang/post my wood sign? In most cases, wooden signs are affixed to sturdy poles for display. While drilled holes are an option when ordering your sign we do not provide any of the hardware for posting your sign, including the screws. For small to medium sized signs (less than 36") typically poles on either end of the sign should be sufficient. For signs that are larger than 36", depending on the location, we recommend using a middle support pole when posting your sign. This will help prevent damage from high winds and other unforeseen circumstances. In addition to using your signs with posts they can be displayed in several ways. One common use for smaller signs is to use the drilled holes and hooks for extra support. The signs can also be affixed to any rigid surface such as a wooden, drywall or concrete walls. Depending on what type of surface it is will dictate how you install your sign. Typically though drilling pilot holes, using anchors for the wall, and a combination of a screw and washer should do the trick to firmly attach the sign to the surface Installation will vary from place to place but should take into consideration foot traffic and exterior elements alike. incidents in many cases. How do I store my wooden sign(s)? Wooden signs should be stored in a cool, dry location. To prevent bowing the signs to prevent bowing the sign. How do I clean my sign(s)? Cleaning your wood sign on a regular basis is recommended and easy to do. A damp non-abrasive cloth or rag is all that is needed in order to wipe down your sign. Make sure that there aren't any rocks or sharp objects on the sign or within the rag before wiping it down to prevent scratching. Otherwise, a gentle wiping down will help remove any dirt buildup that may occur on the sign, particularly on those used or posted outdoors. We also recommend avoiding harsh or strong chemicals or clean your wooden sign. If your sign has been coated with our protective laminate, we recommend using a citrus-based won't even need to leave your house to have the opportunity to purchase a wide array of goods and services: Summer is the season of door-to-door salespeople. Some people must be excited to see these folks. After all, companies are still sending out hundreds of sales reps (often college kids on break) into neighborhoods all over the country to make appointments for services or sell products, so the practice must be effective. Many people, however, dread the ring of the door-to-door salesman, once and for all? We have an idea. What is the best way to keep solicitors away? Unquestionably, the best way to (legally) keep solicitors from knocking on your door is to display "No Soliciting" signs. Think we're biased because we're a sign company? The Supreme Court of the United States has repeatedly ruled that while many local laws that restrict solicitation are unconstitutional, privately posted signs are a legitimate way to tell salespeople to leave you alone. In the words of one Supreme Court opinion, "The Court has traditionally respected the right of a householder to bar, by order or notice, solicitors, hawkers, and peddlers from his property." Put differently, by posting a sign that states that you do not want to receive solicitors, you are effectively telling anyone attempting to solicit that they are not welcome on your property. In almost any part of the United States, those who remain on your property against your express instructions are breaking the law. Takeaway: Putting up a "No Soliciting" sign is the best action that you can personally take to protect your privacy. Still not convinced? Here's why other attempts to stop salespeople aren't as effective as a tried and true "No Soliciting" sign. Click to customize Constitutional Protection for Door-to-Door Salespeople Why aren't there laws that ban door-to-door salespeople canvassing your neighborhood have a constitutional right to be there. The First Amendment to the United States Constitution states: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances." In 1976, the U.S.

Supreme Court stated that speech that, "does no more than propose a commercial transaction" is protected by the First Amendment (Virginia State Board of Pharmacy v. Virginia Citizens Consumer Council). Since that case, the Supreme Court has upheld free speech for commercial purposes. So, the door-to-door salesperson on your front porch is protected by the First Amendment, though there are some legal restrictions that can be placed on his or her activities. Court rulings related to door-to-door soliciting typically deal with the delicate balance between the solicitor's right to privacy on their private property. Most cases arise when a city passes a local ordinance that restricts the activities of solicitors in some way and an organization affected by the law sues the city for violating its First Amendment rights. In the paragraphs below, we discuss some of the most important cases about solicitation and why they are important. After that, we provide a detailed breakdown of "No Soliciting" laws adopted by major cities in all 50 states. Before we get started, though, we need to note a brief disclaimer: we are not attorneys and the information that we provide should not be read or interpreted as expert legal advice. Although we hope that this post will be a valuable resource, readers should consult their local statutes as they make signage decisions. Local Ordinances Regarding Door-to-Door Sales Ordinances regarding door-to-door solicitation are typical anti-solicitation ordinances include registration and permit requirements, hour restrictions, "do not knock" lists, commercial solicitation bans, and, in rare cases, laws that forbid solicitation altogether. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled on numerous cases involving door-to-door sales, and has deemed that many ordinances are unconstitutional. Here are a few examples: Permit and Registration Requirements Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York Inc. v. Village of New York Inc. v. V Stratton, Ohio When the city of Stratton, Ohio passed an ordinance that required "canvassers" to register with the city and obtain a permit in order to go door-to-door, a group of Jehovah's Witnesses filed a lawsuit that ultimately landed in the Supreme Court. The Stratton law allowed residents to complete a "No Solicitation registration form" in which they selected the groups that they were willing to receive, if any. The Jehovah's Witnesses argued that the law trampled on their First Amendment rights to free speech and freedom of religion. The Supreme Court sided with the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, ruling 8-1 that the ordinance violated the rights guaranteed by the First Amendment. Thus, requiring canvassers to register and obtain a permit to go door-to-door was deemed unconstitutional. Time Restrictions Many municipal solicitation ordinances include a time frame during which door-to-door salespeople may operate. These rules are usually intended to preserve both citizen privacy and safety (since criminals sometimes pose as door-to-door salespeople in order to "case" potential targets, scam customers, or force their way into homes). In the end, however, the Supreme Court and other appellate courts generally consider these time restraints to be unconstitutional. City of Watseka v. Illinois Public Action Council In 1987, the U.S. Court of Appeals, Seventh Circuit, ruled that a Watseka, Illinois ordinance that limited door-to-door solicitation to the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Saturday, was in violation of the First Amendment. The city had created the ordinance because citizens had complained that door-to-door salespeople were interrupting their dinners and generally being an annoyance. The city was also concerned that the salespeople might contribute to crime in Watseka and thatlcrimes were more likely to be committed after 5:00 p.m. The Court pointed out that under Watseka's current laws, "Even Girl Scouts will have a difficult time selling their cookies by 5:00 p.m." While the Watseka case didn't involve Girl Scouts, the Court reasoned that some citizens might welcome the opportunity to speak with salespeople, and would be in need of the services or products offered. This is a good point—after all, who wants to miss out on an opportunity for some Thin Mints? The Court of Appeals also noted that there were other ways in which the city could protect its citizens' rights to privacy and keep crime in check: "Watseka residents wishing to avoid door-to-door solicitation" or "no trespassing" sign at their door or at the entrance to their property." In other words, while city time restrictions may be unconstitutional, signs are an effective and acceptable way to prevent solicitors from ringing your doorbell. Click to customize Ohio Citizen Action v. City of Englewood In another case which pitted the right to solicit against homeowner privacy, solicitors came out on top once again.
The City of Englewood, Ohio implemented an ordinance that, among other things, prohibited solicitors from going door-to-door after 6 p.m. In a legal battle that lasted almost seven years, the U.S. Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit found that the city's registration and time restriction requirements were both unconstitutional because they infringed on free speech. While solicitor time restrictions were overturned in both of these cases, Circuit Courts around the U.S. have repeatedly allowed restrictions are reasonable and narrowly tailored. Because the ordinances for Watseka and Englewood both imposed stringent time limitations, the ordinances were overturned on the grounds that they were overly broad. Cities that want to regulate solicitation Bans Project 80's v. City of Pocatello The city of Pocatello had a novel approach to door-to-door sales: ban them altogether. The U.S. Court of Appeals, Ninth Circuit ruled that the Pocatello was clearly unconstitutional because it disregarded the First Amendment rights of commercial salespeople. The Court noted that less restrictive regulations could still preserve citizen privacy. The majority opinion states: "Privacy is easily served by prohibiting solicitation at households that have posted a sign. . . By rejecting such reasonable alternatives in favor of a total prohibition on uninvited solicitation, these ordinances violate the First Amendment commercial speech rights of Project 80's." The Court's ruling suggests that blanket bans on solicitation are simply not constitutional. Privacy can, however, be protected by other means like signage. The Bottom Line Click to customize Based on the rulings above, your chances for enjoying a quiet evening, free of uninvited visitors are looking rather slim. Rest assured, all is not lost. If you really don't want annoying door-to-door salespeople bothering you, you do have one course of action: Post a "No Soliciting" sign and let the law or ordinance work for you. Though a salesman may have the right to be in your neighborhood, he doesn't have the right to knock on your door if you have a sign posted stating that he's not welcome to infringe on your privacy. The reason that Courts have repeatedly ruled that anti-solicitation ordinances violate the First Amendment is because most of these laws take the decision of whether or not to listen to a solicitor out of the hands of the individual citizen. On the flip side, the Courts have repeatedly reasoned that "No Soliciting" signs strike an appropriate balance between the homeowner's right to privacy and the solicitor's right to freedom of speech. So, do "No Soliciting" signs really work? Are they legally enforceable? In a word, Yes. Statements from several Supreme and Circuit Court opinions confirm that signs are an effective, legal solution to your solicitor problems. As the Supreme Court stated in Watchtower, homeowners' ability"to post 'No Solicitation' signs, coupled with their unquestioned right to our breakdown of "No Soliciting" laws in major U.S. cities, most local laws proscribe penalties for solicitors who ignore signs that prohibit solicitation. That said, many local laws have exemptions for political, charitable, and religious groups who are not attempting to sell a product or service. On the other hand, many ordinances specifically state that even religious canvassers must respect "no solicitation" signs. Occasionally, people become frustrated because religious groups seem to repeatedly ignore their "No Soliciting" sign. Why do they do it? The confusion can probably be traced to how the word "solicitor" is defined. Religious representatives may ignore your sign because the word "soliciting" is usually associated with commercial sales of some sort. In fact, some local laws explicitly define "solicitor" as a person who is attempting to sell something (in the traditional sense of the word "sell.") If you continue to receive calls from proselytizing organizations against your wishes, you have two options: either create a custom sign that specifically states the types of inquiries you will not accept, or politely ask the canvassers to depart. Once you decline to receive anyone that arrives on your property, they are legally required to leave. Click to customize What are some tips for making my "No Soliciting" sign effective? Do salespeople sometimes ignore signs? Unfortunately, yes. There are, however, a few things that you can do to maximize the effectiveness of your sign in deterring unwelcome visitors. One idea is to post your ground front yard, you could post the sign on your gate. Otherwise, you might use a wood stake to put your sign in the ground. By doing so, you can drive home the point that you would really rather not be bothered. Solicitors may be less likely to expend the effort to walk to your front door if they know that they will probably be rejected. Another strategy to discourage solicitors from ignoring your "No Soliciting sign" is to create a custom sign that references your local statute. By including a reference to your municipal ordinances, you back yourself up with the authority of the law, giving your sign instant credibility. Click to customize What if my city doesn't have a law that specifically addresses "No Soliciting" signs, chances are that your sign will still work. When you put up a sign, you are essentially stating that solicitors are not invited on your property in writing. Those who disobey your express instructions to leave the property in writing. Those who disobey your express instructions to leave the property in writing. yes. While some local ordinances discuss "No Solicitor" signs solely in terms of their application to private homes, many also state that solicitors are not allowed to approach businesses that display signage. It is, however, somewhat of a common practice among salespeople to ignore signs. To emphasize the point that you don't want solicitors, consider creating a custom "No Soliciting" sign that includes your company logo. Why? To emphasize to cold-callers that you enforce your policy of refusing uninvited sales calls and that your sign isn't a mere formality or something slapped on the door by a previous lessee or the door manufacturer. Even Jeffrey Gitomer, who once wished "that [he] had a dollar for every "No Soliciting" sign [he's] ignored" gives the following word of caution to his fellow salespeople: "If you see a No Soliciting sign that is customized or handcrafted, they probably mean it, especially if the word absolutely is on it." So, even though your everyday sign might not always work, making a custom "No Soliciting" sign can help ensure that you can keep running your business without interruption. If you do post signs, make sure that your employees know that they are free to express themselves at any time that they are not on the clock at work, in accordance with their First Amendment rights to free speech. If your employees misinterpret your sign to mean that their speech is restricted, you could land yourself a visit from the National Labor Relations Board. Can a Homeowner's Association ban all salespeople with "No Soliciting" signs at the entrances to the community? While municipal ordinances vary widely, most local laws allow salespeople to ignore "No Soliciting" signs at the entrance to a community. By doing so, cities leave the decision of whether to listen to a solicitor up to individual households. Any family can still post a "No Soliciting" sign and expect to have their requests heeded by solicitors. There are, of course, exceptions to the typical case. For example, if your entire community can be accessed only by private roads (as is often the case in gated communities), solicitors cannot enter if there are signs at the entrance. Local laws may also specifically restrict access to communities that have signs posted at community access points. Click to customize Are there protections for consumers who buy from door-to-door salespeople? As we stated previously, the door-to-door salesperson in your neighborhood has every right to be there. And she has every right to knock on your door to see if you want to buy her stuff (unless you personally post a sign). The fact that door-to-door salespeople have the right to canvass your neighborhood isn't all bad—some people like the opportunity to see the goodies that companies offer. Even you might want to buy her stuff... especially if she's selling cookies. In the event that something goes awry, however, there are laws in place to protect consumers from faulty products on their doorstep: 1. Solicitor Bonds In an attempt to protect citizens against faulty products, many cities require solicitation bond is that if a product is faulty or part of some type of scam, any victimized consumer can claim a portion of the money to reimburse the losses that they experience because they bought the product. Check your local ordinances to see if your city has a law that requires solicitors to put up a bond before you purchase from them. 2. "Cooling Off" Period The Federal Trade Commission has established a law that requires solicitors to put up a bond before they can work. If they do, you can verify whether the salesperson at your door has paid the bond before you purchase from them. 2. This rule gives anyone who buys a product that costs at least 25 dollars from a door-to-door salesperson must provide buyers with a receipt with the following notice: "You, the buyer, may cancel this rule gives anyone who buys a product that costs at least 25 dollars from a door-to-door salesperson must provide buyers with a receipt with the following notice: "You, the buyer, may cancel this rule gives anyone who buys a product that costs at least 25 dollars from a door-to-door salesperson must provide buyers with a receipt with the following notice: "You, the buyer, may cancel this rule gives anyone who buys a product that costs at least 25 dollars from a door-to-door salesperson must provide buyers with a receipt with the following notice: "You, the buyer, may cancel this rule gives anyone who buyers with a receipt with the following notice: "You, the buyer, may cancel this rule gives anyone who buyers with a receipt with the following notice: "You, the buyer, may cancel this rule gives anyone who buyers with a receipt with the following notice: "You, the buyer, may cancel this rule gives anyone who buyers with a receipt with the following notice: "You, the buyer, may cancel this rule gives anyone who below the following notice: "You are the fo codes, which may provide consumers with even more protection than the federal regulation. If you are trying to return a product that you bought from a travelling salesperson, you may want to consult your local statutes for a similar law. See the Federal Trade Commission's article on the cooling off period for more information. Are there Legal Guidelines for Municipal Restrictions on Door-to-Door Sales? In 1983, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled (Perry Education Association) that restrictions on the time, place and manner of expression of any kind (including commercial speech like door-to-door sales) must meet the following criteria to be constitutional: 1

Be content-neutral. 2. Serve a legitimate governmental objective. 3. Leave open ample alternative channels of communication. 4. Be narrowly tailored to serve the governmental objective. To be content neutral, the law in question should not target or favor a certain group. For example, laws that are designed to limit the activities of a particular religious group would not be considered content neutral. The term, "governmental objectives" sounds ominous, but basically it's just referring to the government's interest in protecting its citizens from crime and also protecting its citizens.
means to accomplish the government objective. In general, the best advice for municipalities that wish to pass an ordinance that restricts solicitation is to make the law as narrow as possible in order to avoid a lawsuit. How to Get Rid of Salespeople - No Soliciting Sign Laws Local ordinances often address "No Soliciting" signs. Many ordinances will specifically state that solicitors must not attempt to contact any residence where there is a "No Soliciting" signs. For instance, in West Jordan, Utah, the ordinance regarding residential solicitation says that door-to-door salespeople must a) check for "No Soliciting" signs b) If a sign is present, the salesperson must forego all efforts to solicit and c) leave immediately. The city of West Jordan also states that it's a crime to violate a "No Solicitation" notice by ringing the doorbell, knocking on the door or otherwise contacting anyone on the property. Many cities also have laws that require solicitors to obtain a permit or license and establish hour restrictions for those going door-to-door. Although ordinances in some locations have been ruled unconstitutional (see above) most local laws at least somewhat different than those that were overturned. As we have emphasized repeatedly in this post, if you want to get rid of door-to-door salespeople for good, your best bet is to put up a "No Soliciting" sign. Will some solicitors ignore your sign?
Perhaps, but if they do, your knowledge of your local laws will help you turn away unwanted visitors and maybe even report them to local authorities. Click to customize To get your sign, click on one of the customize and maybe even report them to local authorities.

Alabama Local ordinances in Montgomery, Alabama state that solicitors and canvassers may not contact any residence or business displaying a sign that states "" or something similar. Montgomery regulations also impose a time limit on solicitation—those going door-to-door must limit their activities to the hours between a.m. and p.m. Huntsville, too, has laws that prevent solicitors from knocking on doors where there are appropriate "No Soliciting" sings. Any solicitors who knocks on a door with a "No Soliciting" sign or fails to leave after being asked to do so could lose their permit to solicit in the city. This permit and the accompanying photo identification badge must be obtained before a soliciting times in Huntsville are limited to the hours between 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Alaska The rules for solicitors in the Anchorage Municipal Code apply primarily to those fundraising for non-commercial solicitors in the municipal clerk and prohibits them from attempting to contact households where there is a sign or notice that prohibits soliciting. Arizona The City of Phoenix has detailed rules about door-to-door solicitation. The Phoenix City Code (Section 23-143) states that solicitors must immediately leave any property that has a sign or notice that prohibits soliciting and may not open or walk through any door or gate that has such a sign. The same applies if the residence has a "no trespassing sign" posted. Section 23-141 of the city code goes on to state that soliciting is restricted to the hours between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. from October to March. Solicitors must carry with them a government-issued form of identification (such as a driver's license) and produce that ID upon request (Section 23-142). Even kids who are selling door-to-door are expected to have a government or student ID with them at all times. So if you are really sick of the neighbor kids hitting you up for Sally Foster gift wrap, you can always sic the cops on them for failing to carry photo identification. In all seriousness, solicitors who don't follow these rules can be charged with a class one misdemeanor. Arkansas The municipal code for Fayetteville, Arkansas contains provisions that make it illegal for solicitors to enter the grounds of or attempt to contact any private residence that has a sign that states "No Soliciting" or a similar phrase. The company for whom any salespeople work must obtain one principal business permit (40 dollars) as well as a solicitor's permit for each salesperson (5 dollars each), which requires an official state criminal background check. Peddlers can only perform their labors within the hours between 10 a.m. and 9 p.m. The violation of any of these rules could result in a fine. (See Chapter 116 of the Fayetteville Code of Ordinances for specific language and additional regulations). are required and solicitors must observe "No Soliciting" signage. Furthermore, any salesperson working within the city must have on their person a copy of Section 82-1 of the city ordinances (which contains all of the soliciting laws that we describe here) as well as their city-issued permit and employer-provided photo ID. These requirements do not apply to representatives of religious, political, or charitable causes. California San Diego No solicitation" sign is posted. The letters on "no solicitation" sign is posted. The letters on "no solicitation" sign must be at least ½ inch high in order to have legal effect. According to the law, this rule applies to "interviewers" such as survey researchers, political canvassers, and even representatives of religious and charitable groups. Ignoring this law is strictly prohibited. Commercial solicitors must obtain a police registration card in order to hawk their wares. This process involves filing finger prints with the San Diego police department and provided a photo for the registration card and police files. Neither commercial solicitors ("interviewers") may contact households between 8 p.m. and 9 a.m. unless they have an already established appointment. Los Angeles The City of Los Angeles requires solicitors to carry with them government-issued identification as well as a Business Tax Registration Certificate. No person may solicit sales or charitable/religious donations between the hours of 8 p.m. and 8 a.m. (See section 41.43.1 of the Los Angeles Municipal Code for exact language). Colorado Solicitors in Denver, Colorado must obtain a peddling license in order to work in the city. The person soliciting must carry their license card with them at all times that they are going from house to house and show it to any prospective customer or police officer that asks to see it. Furthermore, Sec. 47-18 of the Denver Code of Ordinances makes it illegal for any solicitor to "attempt to solicit business at any place which maintains a sign or other visible and legible indication that such solicitation of business is not desired or is prohibited." Solicitations are prohibited ½ hour after sunset and before 8 a.m. Connecticut The city of New Haven, Connecticut The city of New solicitors from going door-to-door before 9 a.m. or after sunset. This law also outlaws a number of potentially deceptive and fraudulent practices. Children who are younger than 16 years old are not allowed to work as door-to-door solicitors. Delaware are established at the state level. Section 4405 of the Delaware Code states that solicitors must obtain and carry a door-to-door salesperson identification, they can only go door-to-door between the hours of 9 a.m. and 8 p.m., Delaware time. Florida Jacksonville The City of Jacksonville, Florida specifically states that "No Soliciting" signs "constitute sufficient notice to any solicitor or peddler . . . that any peddling or soliciting by any person is prohibited at such residence." In other words, Jacksonville law considers a "No Soliciting by any person is prohibited at such residence." In other words, Jacksonville law considers a "No Soliciting" sign adequate notice that solicitors are not allowed on the resident's private property. Jacksonville Code also requires commercial solicitors to obtain a permit and limit their work to the hours between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. Solicitors must be older than 18 to work unaccompanied, and older than 18 to work with the help of an adult supervisor. These laws appear to apply primarily to commercial solicitation, not religious, charitable, or political canvassers. Miami The Miami Code of Ordinances (Sec. 39-47) makes it illegal to solicit, peddle, or canvass at any location that displays a sign that states "No solicitors," "No peddlers," or "No trespassing." The sign must use letters that are at least 1 and ½ inches high. Georgia In Atlanta, local ordinances (Sec. 30-618) state that solicitors may not enter or attempt to contact any residence that has a "No Soliciting" or "No Peddling" sign. Those who ignore properly posted signs could be cited for criminal trespass. Atlanta also requires door-to-door solicitors to obtain a permit, which requires both an application fee and an annual renewal fee. Tax-exempt groups do not have to obtain permits, nor do salespeople with regularly established routes. Hawaii and most major Hawaiian cities, we weren't able to find much on "No Soliciting" signs. The city of Honolulu does have an ordinance that requires peddlers to be licensed by the city (Sec. 29-6.2). In general, however, it is fairly safe to assume that if you express your desire not to receive solicitors they are obligated to leave your property. Idaho Boise, Idaho has detailed regulations (Chapter 5-12of the Boise Municipal Code) about the conduct of door-to-door solicitors within the city. Solicitors are not allowed to enter the premises of any location where a sign is posted that says "No Solicitation Allowed" or "No Peddlers Allowed." Those who violate this law may be charged with a misdemeanor and fined 300 dollars. Additionally, any salesperson attempting to sell goods or services in residential areas must obtain a license from the city, which requires the person seeking the license to pay a fee and provide personal information to the City Clerk. Tax exempt, charitable, political groups and children are not required to get this license. Illinois Chicago's municipal code (10-8-271) states that no commercial advertising materials (flyers, handouts, etc.) may be left at homes that display a sign that states "No Soliciting" or "No Trespassing" at or near the front door. Those who violate this law may be fined between 200 and 1,000 dollars. When it comes to charitable fundraising, any charity that attempts to raise funds by going door-to-door must obtain a permit from the city of Chicago. See 10-8-080 et seq. for more information. Indiana In Indianapolis and Marion County, Indiana, it is illegal for salespeople to attempt to sale goods or services at any private residence where there is a sign or notice near the entrance that forbids soliciting or peddling (Revised Code Sec. 391-104). Iowa The ordinances for the city of Des Moines, Iowa refer to door-to-door salespeople as "peddlers" and make it illegal for a peddler to attempt to do business at any property where there is a sign that states "No Soliciting" or "No Peddling." (See Sec. 78-111 of the Municipal Code.) Solicitors in Des Moines are also required to be licensed with the city and to post a refundable bond to protect against fraudulent sales tactics. Furthermore, door-to-door sales are only allowed between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. Kansas The city of Overland Park, Kansas has an ordinance (5.64.020) that states that no salesperson may knock, ring the doorbell, or attempt to contact any home or apartment where there is a sign that says "No Solicitors" or "No Trespassers." According to the legal definitions of the statue, this rule applies to political organizations, charitable organizations, and religious proselytizers. Solicitors may not attempt to contact the same household twice within a 14 day period for the purpose of a sale (except with permission of the homeowner). Kentucky Louisville, Kentucky has an ordinance(§ 115.361)that prohibits solicitors from attempting to sell their products or services at any residence displaying a sign with the words "No Peddlers," "No Solicitors," "No Trespassers," or other phrases with similar meaning. Soliciting is only allowed between the hours of 9 a.m. and 30 minutes before the official sunset time. It is not allowed on Sundays or on national holidays. Louisiana The law (Sec 152:152c) in Baton Rouge, Louisiana states that solicitation (whether for a commercial, political, charitable, or religious purpose) is prohibited at residences that post a sign that states "No Soliciting." Those who violate this ordinance could be found guilty of trespassing and fined accordingly. The sign must be displayed visibly at the entrance to the property. Salespeople are required to obtain a permit before they begin their work. Baton Rouge limits door-to-door sales to the hours between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. Maine The city and the state of Maine in order to do business. This law does not apply to those who are going door-to-door in behalf of a "bona fide non-profit organization." See Sec. 19-56 of Portland's municipal code for more details. Maryland In Baltimore County, Maryland, solicitors may not attempt to sell merchandise at any residence displaying a "No Soliciting" sign (21-11-106). If a community posts signs that prohibit soliciting at all vehicle entrances, solicitors are not allowed to contact any of the homes in the community. The law further states that salespeople may only go door-to-door between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Those who violate either of these rules could be charged with a misdemeanor and fines up to 100 dollars. Massachusetts Although the laws governing soliciting in Boston, Massachusetts are somewhat sparse, the city code contains an ordinance that makes it illegal for solicitor's request" (16-41.1). Michigan Local regulations in Grand Rapids, Michigan state that salespeople must not attempt to contact households who have posted a sign that states "no solicitors," "no peddlers," "no peddlers," "no salespeople," etc. (Sec. 7.261). Solicitors may not call at any residence before 9 a.m. or after 9 p.m. unless they have an appointment. Licenses are required of those who are selling goods or services, but not of representatives for charitable, religious, and political causes. However, religious, charitable, and political canvassers must obey solicitor or peddler to call at a residence that posts a sign that states "No Peddlers, and political canvassers must obey solicitor or peddler to call at a residence that posts a sign that states "No Peddlers, and political canvassers must obey solicitor or peddler to call at a residence that posts a sign that states "No Peddlers, and political canvassers must obey solicitor or peddler to call at a residence that posts a sign that states "No Peddlers, and political canvassers must obey solicitor or peddler to call at a residence that posts a sign that states "No Peddlers, and political canvassers must obey solicitor or peddler to call at a residence that posts a sign that states "No Peddlers, and political canvassers must obey solicitor or peddler to call at a residence that posts a sign that states "No Peddlers, and political canvassers must obey solicitation signs and hours residence that posts a sign that states "No Peddlers, and political canvassers must obey solicitation signs and hours residence that posts a sign that states "No Peddlers, and political canvassers must obey solicitation signs and hours residence that posts a sign that states are signs and hours residence that posts a sign that states are sign to the sign of the sig

The sign must be posted near the front door to the house use a font size 48 or larger and be at least 4 inches tall and 4 inches tall and 4 inches wide (Sec. 332.90). This exclusion does not apply to non-commercial representatives (for example, those representing religious groups, charities, and political causes)
By law, commercial solicitors are required to be licensed by the city of Minneapolis and Hennepin County. They must also register with the city and obtain a solicitors are not allowed to contact any residence that has posted a sign "clearly indicating that solicitations are not welcome on the property" (Sec. 94-2(b)). Salespeople are not allowed to solicit before sunrise or after sunset and must register with the Jackson Police before they begin to sell within the city. Those who violate these requirements could be required to perform community service, pay fines, or even serve time in jail (depending on the number of offenses). Missouri When it comes to "No Solicitation" signs, the Kansas City, Missouri Code of Ordinances (Sec. 50-172) states: "No person shall solicit anything or any action from any person at property designated by a sign, conspicuously posted at the front door of the property, indicating 'No Solicitation,' ' expressing the unwillingness of occupants of the property to accept solicitors." The penalty for breaking this law could be up to a $1,000 fine or 6 months in jail. Montana makes it illegal for any salesperson to "[continue] to solicit a person who has made a negative response. Moreover, solicitors may not solicit on private property "if the owner, tenant, or lawful occupant has asked the person not to solicit on the property" (Sec. 18-1001). Assuming that a sign constitutes a negative response, if you post a sign at or near your door that states that solicitors are not welcome on your property, they are not legally allowed to attempt to make a sale. Anyone whose a sign at or near your door that states that solicitors are not welcome on your property.

(Sec. 3-25). We assume that this would also make attempting to contact households with "No Soliciting" signs illegal. Nevada What happens in Vegas, but door-to-door salespeople can't stay on your porch if you have a sign that says "No Peddlers or Solicitors" (or something similar) posted near the entrance to your house (see 6.62.120 of the Las Vegas Code of Ordinances). In order to sell commercial goods or services within the city, solicitors must be prepared to show either the permit or the card to any people (including consumers) who ask to see them. This means that if you are worried that a particular salesman is not legitimate, you can ask to see identification that states that they have been approved by local authorities. New Hampshire's municipal ordinances (§ 231-13) state that no solicitor is allowed to "enter any house, building or premises where there is posted on the front of the house, building or premises a written notice stating that vendors are not desired." Put differently, if you put up a sign that states "No Solicitors" or "No Vendors," salespeople are legally prohibited from knocking on your door. Any salesperson who ignores one of these signs could lose their vendor's license (which they are legally required to obtain before attempting to sale their wares) and be fined up to $1,000. Registered charitable groups and kids are typically exempt from solicitation rules in Nashua. New Jersey Must obtain a canvasser license prior to selling their products. The salesperson must carry this permit with him or her whenever going about their work and show it to anyone who requests to see it. To comply with the law, solicitors can't knock on your door before 9 in the morning or after 6 at night. (See § 245-12 et seg.) New York The city of Buffalo, New York has regulations that prohibit solicitation at any household that has a "No Soliciting" sign. Section 6.36(c) of the Buffalo City Code states the following: "It is unlawful for any solicitor, peddler or transient merchant to enter, or attempt to gain entrance, to residential premises displaying at such entrance a sign prohibiting solicitation." All solicitors must limit their activities to the hours between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. If the solicitor is attempting to sell commercial goods or services, they must obtain a permit from the city. North Carolina has an ordinance (Sec. 15-15(a)(1)) that makes it unlawful for a solicitor to continue to try to convince a person has said no. The statute states that it is illegal to "[Continue] to solicit . . . after the person to whom the solicitation is directed has made a negative response, either verbally, by physical sign" spoken of refers to a physical motion or body language, you have the right to expect a solicitor to leave you alone after you say no. Moreover, the Supreme Court has repeatedly ruled that posted signs are a way for homeowners to express that they refuse a solicitors from approaching dwellings (apartments, houses, etc.) that post a 3 by 4 inch sign that states "No Solicitors" in 1/3 inch letters. The sign should be posted visibly near the entrance to the house. Solicitors are not allowed to approach any residence after 9 p.m. or before 9 a.m. and are also required to obtain a solicitation permit from the city before they begin working in Fargo. Religious, charitable, and political organizations are not required to have this permit. Ohio In Columbus, Ohio it is illegal for solicitors to attempt to contact residences that display a solicitor must limit their activities to the hours between 9 a.m. and 8 p.m. and are required to obtain and display a solicitor identification card from the city of Columbus. If a salesperson is not wearing their identification, you have the legal right to required to obtain a permit or wear identification. Oklahoma Like many cities, Oklahoma City does not allow solicitors," "No Trespassing," since by doing so the person "has indicated his/her desire not to be contacted for sales or solicitations" (§ 39-19). Since Oklahoma City law defines solicitors primarily in terms of commercial sales, this requirement may not apply to religious, charitable, and political canvassers. Tulsa has similar regulations (Section 2903) that prevent salespeople from soliciting residences that have posted a "No Soliciting" sign or placard. There is also a soliciting curfew after 7 p.m. and before 8 a.m. If any solicitor ignores your sign or knocks after the approved hours, the city of Tulsa suggests that you call the Tulsa Police Department at (918) 596-9222. If you don't want to receive advertising flyers, you can also post a sign that states "No Handbills" or "No Advertisement" (or add that notice to your "No Soliciting" sign). Oregon The city of Salem, Oregon's laws (95.220) make it illegal for people to leave handbills or other advertisements on private property without written consent from the owner. By posting a sign that expresses your wish not to receive advertisements, you explicitly say that you do not give your written permission. Unfortunately, we were not able to find any ordinances related to "No Soliciting" signs specifically in either the city of Portland. about a particular salesperson, you can check with the city to make sure he or she has obtained the appropriate licenses to work within the city. Rhode Island When it comes to door-to-door solicitors the cities of Providence and Warwick, Rhode Island have nearly identical regulations. Section 46-13 (in both codes - the link goes to the Providence code) says the following: "It shall be unlawful for any peddler or solicitors,' or words of similar import indicating that such persons are not wanted on said premises, is painted, affixed or otherwise exposed to public view." The municipal codes in both cities also forbid solicitation between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and a police-issued identification between the hours of 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. Solicitors must obtain a license and 9 p.m. and 9 a.m. and

Charleston ordinances say that solicitors are only allowed to contact residences between the hours of 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. South Dakota In Sioux Falls, South Dakota, solicitors are not allowed to enter properties that post certain signs. The city code (Sec. 29-4) state:
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            "It shall be unlawful for any peddler to enter upon any private premises when the premises is posted with a sign stating "No Peddlers Allowed,"
"No Soliciting," or words to that effect." Door-to-door salespeople may not visit any household after 8 p.m. or before 9 a.m. and must get a permit from the Sioux Falls city finance department before they can begin to sell their products or services. Charitable, religious, and political organizations are exempt from all of the above regulations, as are salespeople who deal exclusively with businesses or government officials. Tennessee According to the laws in Nashville, Tennessee (6.64.030), no commercial solicitor may enter or stay on any private property that displays a "No Solicitation" or "No Trespassing" sign near the entrance to the property. If an apartment or condo complex posts signs at the entrances to the complex, solicitors may not approach people in the common areas of the complex, but are allowed to go door-to-door unless the individual apartments are listed on the local "No Solicitation List." Nashville ordinances also require solicitors to obtain a solicitation permit as well as a city-issued identification badge at all times that he or she is working and must show their permit to any person (police, potential customers, etc.) who requests to see it. Any solicitor who disobeys any of these rules could have their solicitation permit revoked and be fined 50 dollars per day of violation. Texas Dallas According to the laws in Dallas, Texas (Sec. 42-21 of the Dallas City Code), if you don't want to be bothered by door-to-door salespeople, you should post a weatherproof sign that states "NO SOLICITORS." The sign must be no smaller than 3 by 4 inches, while the letters must be at least 2/3 inches tall. According to the ordinance, solicitors have a duty to look for signs that prohibit soliciting and leave the property without knocking, ringing the doorbell, or otherwise attempting to contact the household if such a sign is displayed near the home's main entrance. San Antonio The city of San Antonio also has regulations governing solicitations, though the laws there relate mostly to handbills and other flyers that are commonly left on door handles or steps. Section 21-3 of the San Antonio Code of Ordinances states "no solicitation," "no advertisements," or "no handbills" in 2/3 inch letters. This law does not, however, apply to government, political, religious, or charitable organization distributing flyers for their respective causes. Utah City ordinances (6.09.170) in Provo, Utah stipulate that a "No Solicitation" sign posted at any residence constitutes notice that the household does not want to receive solicitors. Solicitors are required by law to check for "No Solicitors are also required to register with the city in order to obtain an annual certificate and identification badge. Door-to-door sales and canvassing are prohibited after 9 p.m. and before 9 a.m. Vermont Peddlers and solicitors working in Burlington, Vermont are required to be licensed in order to go door-to-door. Salespeople are required by Burlington law to display their licensing certificate at all times that they are soliciting. If they fail to display their certificate or obtain a license, they can face civil fines between 50 and 500 dollars. (See Chapter 23 of the Burlington Code of Ordinances place restrictions on door-to-door advertisement. Sec. 23-44.2 of the municipal code states that no handbills, brochures, paper, sample, etc. (whether commercial) may be left at any private property that has "conspicuously posted a "no solicitation" sign or any similar sign which clearly indicates that the owner or occupant of the property does not want to receive such materials." If a solicitor ignores this sign, he or she could be charged with a 3rd degree misdemeanor. Virginia Beach also requires solicitors to obtain a permit from the city before they begin selling door-to-door. Washington Anyone conducting residential sales in Seattle, Washington is subject to city ordinances (6.260.050) which prohibit any solicitation at residences that display a sign with the words ""no peddlers" or "no solicitors." Solicitors in Seattle must also obtain a current license to conduct door-to-door solicitation is limited to the hours between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. West Virginia's laws governing door-to-door soliciting (Sec. 18-522) appear to be rather narrow in scope. The city requires solicitors to obtain a license and register with the Department of Consumer Protection. Thus, if you are worried about whether a solicitor is legitimate, you can call the city of Charleston and ask whether the solicitor has taken the appropriate legal steps to hawk their wares.
Wisconsin According to section 95-15 of the Milwaukee, Wisconsin code of ordinances, no solicitor may attempt to contact a residence that posts a sign that states "Solicitor who ignores your No Soliciting sign (or the other regulations below) could be fined anywhere from 50 to 500 dollars. Salespeople working in Milwaukee must register with the police department at least 5 days before beginning to work and should carry an identification card at all times. Soliciting is permitted during the hours after 8 a.m. and before 9 p.m. Wyoming In Chevenne, Wyoming solicitors are forbidden from attempting to engage any residence where there is a sign with the words "No Solicitors" or a similar phrase (5.76.050). Other ordinances (8.52.060) make it illegal to leave flyers, handbills, door hangers, etc. at homes that display a "No Trespassing," "No Soliciting," "No Peddlers or Agents" or "No Advertisement" sign. Regulations in Cheyenne also require solicitors to obtain and display a city-issued license and limit their activities to the hours between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. Make a lasting impact at trade shows, conferences, and events with retractable banners — the ultimate portable, professional, and cost-effective signage solution. are made for indoor use but can be used outside if used for shorter periods of time and not during harsh weather conditions. Are 'retractable banners' and 'pop up banners' are typically used interchangeably within the signage industry. Both refer to the functionality of a retractable banner which rolls up into and pulls out of a metal retractable stand or base. Some other names for retractable banners, and roll up banners are pull up displays. A pop up display is a larger, more expensive, and functionally different product (no hard base and a three-dimensional appearance) albeit with a similar end use. So long as it's clear that retractable banners are the same thing, the only thing you'll need to clarify is whether you want a standard, premium, or deluxe retractable banners. The primary differences between these three, as outlined fully in the next question, are the base, sizes offered, carrying case, and double sided functionality. You can select between standard, premium, and deluxe versions of the retractable banner by selecting the proper size on this page or the design tool. If you're still confused don't hesitate to contact us and we'd be happy to help! What is the difference between your standard, premium, and deluxe retractable banners? Standard, premium, and deluxe retractable banners all allow for the choice between fabric and vinyl material and the fabric being a gray-backed coated polyester. The gray backing helps reduce backlight issues while the coating produces more vibrant printing. The gray backing is not visible when the fabric banner is displayed in your retractable banner. Beyond this, the primary difference between these versions is the base and double-sided functionality. The carrying case for each is also slightly different. The standard retractable banner has a basic, albeit sturdy and reliable, base with feet on either end to provide stability when the banner is fully set up. When not in use these feet twist to hide from view and more easily store and/or be transported. Standard retractable banners come in two different sizes: 24"x81" and 33"x81". These banners also cost less when compared to the premium or deluxe versions. The interior of the carrying case than that of the premium retractable banners have an upgraded base with stepped base with stepped base with stepped base. hardware and chrome end caps to provide a more professional look to the assembled retractable banner. Premium retractable banners are single sided and comes with a carrying case. The interior of the carrying case is padded. The deluxe retractable banner option has an upgraded base with chrome endcaps and sleek attractive hardware. Its base functions similar to the premium version and doesn't have feet like the standard version. The premium version is only available in the size of 33"x81". The deluxe banner also allows you to have a double sided retractable banner unlike the standard or premium options. This is perfect for use when passing foot traffic is coming from both directions past the sign. The double sided functionality allows for the banner. The deluxe version comes with a soft carrying case that features a shoulder strap and a side pocket that may be used for extra storage. The interior of the carrying case is padded. All three banner types include a padded carrying case (differences noted above). A single LED light is available as an additional option for both standard banners and the deluxe banner allow for the purchase of 2 LED lights. Are retractable banners easy to move around? Yes. Retractable banners are lightweight and portable, so they are easy for one person to move and reposition, as well as setup and takedown. We also provide a carrying case (the cases for standard, premium, and deluxe, banners differ and are explained in full detail in the previous question) with either a shoulder strap or handles that makes traveling with your banner to and from trade shows and other events as easy as carrying a lightweight duffle bag. What materials? You can print your graphic on vinyl or fabric. Vinyl is the more affordable option of the two and has more of a matte finish, while fabric banners are more vibrant due to the fabric before printing. Vinyl is also a durable outdoor option, and it's also scratch resistant and has curl-free edges. Despite vinyl typically being used outdoors, if your end use is extended or permanent outdoor use we recommend our standard vinyl banners instead of a retractable banner with the vinyl option. Can your graphic on either side. You have the option to have one design on both sides of your banner stand or have separate designs, one on each side of the banner. How is my graphic attached to the retractable banner? After being digitally printed, the banner (vinyl and fabric) is then attached to the retractable portion of the base unit before locking it into position with the adjustable pole. Can I swap banners on the same stand? Yes, whether you are using a vinyl or fabric banner you are able to switch out your banner. We strongly recommend having a professional exchange your graphics though because your retractable banner is spring-loaded and attempting to do this yourself without knowing how could cause damage to the base and possibly injury as well. Is there anything over the top of the graphic to protect it? Nothing is printed over the top of your graphic. It is printed directly onto the vinyl or fabric material respectively. How big is the banner area? Can this be changed? It is important to understand the difference between the listed size of standard, premium, and deluxe banners and their viewable area is slightly smaller in height due to some of your banners and their viewable area. remaining in your base and the metal bar at the top of the display. Thus, the viewable banner area on a 33" x 81" standard retractable banner is 33" x 77". The viewable banner area on a 36" x 92" premium retractable banner is 36" x 88". The viewable banner area on a 38" x 77". The viewable banner area on a 36" x 81" standard retractable banner area on a 36" x 81" 48" x 92" premium retractable banner is 48" x 88". The viewable area on a 60" x 92" premium retractable banner is 33" x 77". As can be seen for all of the banners the viewable area is 4" less than what the height indicates. The additional 4" of height is bleed that we will add to your design. This bleed area is noted blue line at the top and a dotted blue line at the top and a dotted blue line at the top bar and the message "NON-VISIBLE AREA" at the bottom. As noted above, this is due to the fact that the four inches of non-viewable area is made up of one inch for the top bar and the message "NON-VISIBLE AREA" at the bottom. 3 inches of material that will stay within the aluminum base at the bottom of your design. Simply make sure to keep your design within these two dotted lines and you will have no problems with your end design. Alternatively, the width (24", 33", 36", 48", 60", and 33") on all of these areas is unchangeable. If, however, you would like to decrease the height on any of the premium sizes (36", 48", and 60") or deluxe (33") banners, you can simply pull it up to where your graphic ends. Both premium and deluxe retractable banners can be adjusted to be as short as 70" in height as the support pole is telescopic in nature. Alternatively, the standard banners have a fixed height of 81" and the supporting pole isn't able to be adjusted to a different height. The 60" premium retractable banners? Yes, we offer a number of different sizes for your retractable banners. These sizes vary depending on whether the banner is a Standard, Premium, or Deluxe model. These sizes are listed below. Standard: 24" wide x 92" high, and 60" wide x 92" high, and 60" wide x 81" high The height of your design can technically be decreased to 70" on the premium and deluxe retractable banners are a set height that cannot be decreased. The widths for all banners are unchangeable. Can my design be smaller than the actual banners are a set height that cannot be decreased. The widths for all banners are unchangeable. Can my design be smaller than the actual banners are unchangeable. question about banner areas two questions above). Simply leave the lower portion of your design blank or a solid color. Do you print your retractable banners in full color, meaning you are able to have the graphics on your banner printed in several different colors or just one if that's all you need. Do you do color matching with the graphics I upload? We do not currently offer color matching on our retractable banner? For large signs, such as retractable banners, but we typically hit or get extremely close to the colors you provide in your file. Is there a certain file type I need to use when uploading my graphic(s) for my retractable banner? For large signs, such as retractable banners, we recommend vectorized designs or files. If you do not have a vector file then please use the highest resolution file you have. It is recommended that it be 200 dpi. We also offer free design services if you need design help getting your design created. What is the lifespan of your retractable banners? Our retractable banners should last up to 5+ years with the proper use and care. The lifespan can be even longer, but it obviously depends on what kind of conditions you use your banner in and the care you give it. Why isn't there free shipping on these retractable banners? Per our standard policy, all shipments that are deemed oversized (as determined by the carrier) will incur shipping cost. Because all three premium banner sizes trigger oversized shipping, we are unable to ship these banners for free. What if my graphics for the retractable banner have more than 2 colors? Will it cost more? No. We print all of our signs in full color, meaning no matter how many colors your banner (s) may have, your cost won't go up. Your cost will be determined by the quantity you order, the shipping options you choose and any applicable taxes. Do I have to use one of your templates for my custom retractable banner? No. We have a vast range of templates available for you to use one of your templates for my custom retractable banner? No. We have a vast range of templates available for you to use one of your templates for my custom retractable banner? professional designers. Another option is to upload your file(s) to our design tool to create your custom retractable banners. Simply remove everything from the carrying case, lock the pole into place, pull the banner out of the aluminum base and then attach it to the pole. Be sure to take care when attaching the graphic to the base and may cause permanent damage. Use care with the pole(s) as they may bend if mishandled or improperly installed. Carefully attach the top of the graphic to the pole. Don't use excessive force as this may damage your retractable banner. If you purchased a display light or lights, simply attach the light(s) to the top of the stand. The entire assembly process should take only a few minutes. Is the case included with the retractable banner? What about the LED Light? Yes, the carrying cases are included with a retractable banner order, but the LED Light(s) is not. The LED display light can be added to your order for an additional cost on the design tool or shopping cart pages by selecting it as an option. Two LED lights are available for the two larger premium versions as well as the deluxe version. The rest of the banners come with only one LED light if purchased. Is the included carrying case the same for the standard, premium, and deluxe banners? Can I use the case interchangeably? While all three retractable banner size. They are not interchangeable. The standard (both sizes) case is much simpler in nature. It is more like a gym bag or tent pole bag that doesn't have any rigidity. While not as protective as the premium case, it does include some padding. One end of this case zips open and your retractable banner and support pole slide into the bag. It will not fit an LED light or lights if purchased. It has two sewn in handles or a smaller shoulder strap for transport needs. The deluxe case zips open on one end to slide in the support pole and your base with retracted banners. The interior is padded and the one end of the exterior has a leather finish. There is an additional side pocket for extra storage. It has two sewn in handles and a shoulder strap for easy transport. How many poles are included with the retractable banner? Included with the support base. Both the Standard and Deluxe retractable banners only have one pole. Do you sell just the bases themselves? We currently do not sell the bases by themselves online. If you need a replacement base or stand as a standalone item please contact us. We recommend you either order a new retractable banner and its accessories arrive in the same box? Yes, your retractable banner, base stand, carrying case and LED display light(s) (if you purchased this option) will all ship and arrive to your desired location in the same box. Usage Can I use my retractable banner outside? Any exceptions or restrictions? While our retractable banners are built for indoor use, they can be used outdoors for short periods of time. The vinyl banner is your best choice since it's more durable for outside during inclement weather, especially when there are high winds, heavy rainfall and sustained cold temperatures. Will my retractable banner fade, scratch or wrinkle? With all of our banners, we use durable materials and quality ink, lending to retractable banners that don't fade and are scratch resistant, unlike cheap, low-quality banners. Of course, with any sign there will eventually be some fading, but with the ink we use, your custom banner should remain vibrant for several years down the road. Will the base of my retractable banner be easily damaged? The base itself, which is a durable metal stand, shouldn't have any problems with damage. It is a sturdy base that provides excellent stability for your retractable banner. But like we explain below, you should never place anything on top of your retractable banner. or stand. Also, make sure to strap it into the case (premium case only) before storing and traveling with the banners are in tradeshow display booths and at events and conferences to advertise and promote business products and services. They are also great to use in presentations and point of purchase displays because they are eye-catching and really draw in the attention of everyone who passes by them. Further, at events and conferences they can be used for directional signage, sign in tables and more. Can I reuse my retractable banner? Yes! Our retractable banners are quite durable and can be used repeatedly. Simply store them as per the instructions below and you should have no issue using these banners again and again for years to come. If you'd like to change out the graphic in your retractable stand, we would recommend printing one from us and then having a professional reinstall it into the base. Installation & Care How do I assemble my retractable banner? A retractable banner requires very little assembly and no installation. You simply have to remove everything from the carrying case, lock the pole into place, pull the banner option be sure to twist or rotate the feet on the bottom of the base so they are perpendicular to the base. This will help stabilize the standard banner while assembled and in use. If you purchased a display light (or lights), you just need to attach the light to the top rung of the banner of either the standard, premium, or deluxe version. The assembly and takedown process which is doing the assembly steps in reverse - only takes a couple of minutes to complete. Placing your banner and ensure the edges of your sign. Please use care while retracting your banner and ensure the edges of the graphic go in smoothly and centered. Will there be assembly instructions with my retractable banner? Yes, assembly instructions are provided with your banner, and you can find them inside the carrying case. Feel free to also contact us if you have any questions about assembled. How do I store my retractable banner? To store your banner into the base and then storing your retractable banner, pole and light within your carrying case (premium case only). You want to keep this in a dry area at room temperature to avoid damage in-between uses. Although the bases are fairly durable, do not place anything heavy on your banner, even when in the carrying case, and do not throw or drop it whether inside or outside of the case. Is there any kind of ongoing care or maintenance needed for my retractable banner? Assuming that you correctly set up and take down your retractable banner, it requires little to no ongoing care or maintenance. Retracting the banner into its metal base will protect the material, whether fabric or vinyl, from any potential damage in between uses. Simple stains on either a vinyl or fabric banner can be washed away with warm water and a soft, damp cloth. Never use abrasive cloths or strong cleaners on your banner because it could ruin the printing on the banner itself. Both of these banners are UV printed and can not be laundered or washed in a machine in any way. Vinyl banners are one of the most versatile and cost-effective ways to promote your business, event, or message. Product Specs Do I have to use one of your templates for my vinyl banner? While we have created templates for you to use as a starting point, if you don't want to use them and would like to design your own banner, you have three additional options. First, you can choose the blank template and start designing from scratch on our design tool. Second, you can upload your own files to make a banner. Lastly, you can contact us and have us design something for you. What thickness are your banners? Do you offer other thickness of material that is used for most outdoor billboards. Thus, it should be sufficient for any outdoor use. If you still prefer a thicker banner then the 18 oz gives added durability for your end use. Simply put, both banners should be fit for either indoor or outdoor use and provide exceptional durability and clear printing. What are the differences between the 13 oz and the 18 oz vinyl banner options? Though both vinyl banner options offer superb durability and vivid image quality, there are minor differences that set each apart. The 13 oz vinyl, meaning the material is lighter and more pliable (easier to roll) than the 18 oz vinyl, meaning the material is lighter and more pliable (easier to roll) than the 18 oz vinyl, meaning the material is lighter and more pliable (easier to roll) than the 18 oz vinyl is thinner than 18 oz vinyl, meaning the material is lighter and more pliable (easier to roll) than the 18 oz vinyl is thinner than 18 oz vinyl is thinner tha Though, there is no welded hem when pole pockets are selected or not. Do you print double sided banners? Yes, we can print double sided banners. To print a double sided banner you must choose the 18 oz thickness option. Double sided is only an option for 18 oz and not 13 oz material due to differences in the manufactured material. Do you print in one color, that's great too. Printing in full or one color does not affect the cost of your banner. Additionally, the amount and design of text or images does not affect the price of your custom made banners. Technically we don't allow banners to be smaller than 6"x6" but we would recommend that you don't print any banners smaller than 24"x12". If you need something smaller than that we would recommend one of the many other types of signs we offer. The maximum size of our banners is 120"x1980" (10'x165'). As long as one of your dimensions is under twelve feet then you can virtually print any size you want. If you need a banner larger than that, we can create one for you. Just call us and give us the details. Are there hems on your banners? Welded hem for 13 oz vinyl banners. Our 18 oz banners have a flush cut edge instead of a welded hem. This is the case for banners with and without pole pockets. Will my large banner have seams? No, because we are able to print banners up to 10'x165', we may have to add a seam at that point. Are your banners a matte or gloss finish? Our vinyl banner material comes with a semi-gloss finish. However, our ink is more of a matte finish so anywhere you see white will be semi-glossy and anywhere there is ink will be matte. That means if your banner is full color with no white, it will be completely matte. number of different grommet options to suit vour banner and needs. These grommet options can be selected in the Options section just underneath the design tool's editing area. Your banner will come with grommets "Every 2-3 ft" unless you choose otherwise. One thing to note is grommets cannot be placed on banners that have options or setups beyond those listed here and available via the design tool's Grommets dropdown menu. Can I place grommets on a banner that has a pole pocket(s)? At the current time grommets cannot be placed in banners that have pole pockets and grommets are not compatible on the same banner if you try to select both options. This notification will confirm your selection of either pole pockets or grommets and what option(s) will be removed because of your selection. Your banner pricing is great - what's the catch? Is it too good to be true? Vinyl banners are traditionally one of the most affordable signage options available. We are able to give the pricing we do while maintaining our quality because of the weather, fade and abrasion resistant UV ink. All our banner sizes? The most common banner sizes are 2' x 4', 3' x 5', 3' x 6', 4' x 8'. But we can print practically any size custom banner you need. For size restrictions please see the FAQ question addressing that or the design tool will warn you if you choose a size outside of what we're able to print. When you say custom made does that mean handmade? No. Custom made according to what you want. We do not stock commonly used banners. Handmade quote. So are your banners made out of plastic or vinyl? What's the difference? Vinyl is a synthetic man-made material. It's a type of plastic made from ethylene and chlorine that when combined form Polyvinyl Chloride (PVC), which is often shortened and referred to as vinyl. So technically you could say our signs are made out of plastic since vinyl is a type of plastic. I'm doing a lot of outside advertising, is there a better option than vinyl banners? No. Vinyl banners are our top performers when it comes to outdoor advertising, is there a better option than vinyl banners? No. Vinyl banners are our top performers when it comes to outdoor advertising, is there a better option than vinyl banners? No. Vinyl banners are our top performers when it comes to outdoor advertising signage options. Their durability and resistance to weather, water and humidity make them the perfect choice. Our A-Frame signs are also a great option if you need something for foot traffic. Can I make a vertical banner instead of horizontal? Yes. You can make your banner vertical or horizontal, whichever you prefer. What if I want a blank banner? How do I do that? For a blank banner end continue to purchase your blank banner. What edge finishes do you have available for vinyl banners? Your banners that do not have an edge finish, which means the banner is cut to the same size as the design. This is the only available option for 18 oz. banners because of the nature of the material. Welded hem edge finish is the strongest option for vinyl banners. It gives the banner a smooth finished edge, and prevents it from getting frayed. Welded hem edge finishes also help in maintaining the shape of the banners. Do your vinyl banners have different weights? Yes, they do. The larger the banner, the heavier it is. For example, 13 oz. banners have 13 ounces of vinyl per square yard. This means that for 18 oz. banners have 13 ounces of vinyl weighs 18 ounces. My banner will be exposed to direct sunlight. What finish would you recommend to ensure it does not fade right away? Our vinyl banners all come with a semi-gloss finish. There's also no need to worry about fading under direct sunlight because our custom vinyl banners are printed with fade-resistant UV ink and can last for more than three years with proper care. Usage I'm going to a trade show - will these banners work? Do I have to get grommets? If not, how do I hang it? Our standard vinyl banners are are intended to be used for inside or outside use. The exception to this is extreme weather such as high wind which may cause your banner to become dislodged and result in a damaged sign. We recommend that you take down your banner to become dislodged and result in a damaged sign. We recommend that you take down your banner to become dislodged and result in a damaged sign. We recommend that you take down your banner to become dislodged and result in a damaged sign. We recommend that you take down your banner to become dislodged and result in a damaged sign. Regardless of the size of your banner it is highly unlikely that your banner will tear. Even the edges of your sign should be fine due to the reinforced hem that comes standard on our 13 oz banner. The greater danger is that larger banners are more susceptible to damage during weather events with high wind when whatever is holding in place comes welded hem as do our 13 oz banners. Regardless, except in high wind situations, they have proven to be extremely durable in a wide variety of outdoor uses. Will the printing should remain vibrant for years. While there will eventually be fading as there will be with any sign, we're confident that you'll find your custom banner to be long-lasting and crisp for years to come. I live in a very cold part of the country - how long will my banner last? The lifespan of our banners is 3+ years with proper care and maintenance. Consistent cold and wintery weather should not adversely impact your banner in the short term. Though the constant exposure may reduce the lifespan of the banner sould still last for more than a couple of years. Will your banners work for parades? Yes, our vinyl banners work for parades. They're durable, weather resistant, printed in full color using fade and abrasion resistant ink and you can add your own graphics to make sure your message is clearly seen by all in attendance. Do you do personalized birthday party banner and upload the image file while creating your sign. Preferred image formats that you are able to upload are .AI, .EPS, .PS, .PSF. We also accept the following formats: .JPEG, .JPG, .PNG, .GIF, .BMP, .TIFF and .TIF. How do I create a picture or photo banner? Click "Get Started!" and choose the blank template option. You can also choose the blank template option from our Popular Templates section on the custom vinyl banners page. Once you're on our design tool, click "Upload Image" and select your file to upload. The file types we accept are listed in the previous question and the maximum size photo file you can upload is 25MB. Once your picture has been uploaded, arrange it how you want it on the banner and add any text you want accompanying it. Make sure you view your proof before purchasing your photo banner. You can also send us a description so we can design something for free. Does vinyl work for outside banners/signs or outdoor advertising? Yes, vinyl is a very durable outside banners have an internal fabric that makes them stronger and better able to handle sunny, rainy, snowy and windy weather days. However, we do suggest taking your banner down if inclement weather comes to the letters on your banner, think big. If your letters are 4" tall, 40 feet is the furthest optimal distance for viewers to visibly read the sign. If you make your letters 15", then the furthest optimal impact distance is 150 feet. A general rule is letter height needs to be 1" for every 10 feet of visibility. Having said this, your sign will still be visible beyond the "furthest optimal distance" and is typically viewable 3-4.5x farther than the maximum optimal distance. For example, 3" letters will be best viewed within 30 feet and will be able to be viewed at a maximum distance of approximately 90'-135'. Other considerations that impact viewability include: where you place your sign, what the viewers will be doing when seeing your sign (walking, driving, standing still), lighting, colors used, design of the sign and your target market's eyesight. Once you choose your letter height, you can determine what size your large banner needs to be to fit your banner and letter size to have the greatest impact. If you're still unsure of how big your sign should be feel free to contact us and we'd be happy to help! Are your 13 oz vinyl banners really suitable for outdoor use. The 13 oz material is sufficient for displaying in most weather conditions, including in rain and light wind The UV ink we use to print your design is fade and abrasion resistant, adding to the overall durability of your banner. For a thicker and heavier material will improve resistance to wind and give added rigidity in such conditions. Our 18 oz banners, like our 13 oz banners, are exceptional for outdoor display. What are typical uses for your custom vinyl banners? The typical uses for custom vinyl banners include: birthday parties, parades, grand openings, events, tradeshows and conferences, high school gyms and sports teams, outdoor advertising signs, anniversaries, reunions, now hiring signs, street signs, city events and holidays, roadside businesses (fireworks, pumpkins, fresh produce, etc.), churches and church events. Vinyl banners are one of the most versatile signage options of any sign type. Will my banner printing should remain intact and vibrant for several years. Custom Options Do you sell banners with pole pockets? What should I know about pole pockets for both our 13 oz and 18 oz vinyl banners. To add a pole pockets for both our 13 oz and 18 oz vinyl banners will be indicated by dotted lines on the artboard of the design tool depending on which option you choose. While your design tool. Pole pockets can be included on both single and double sided banners (double sided banners are only available in 18 oz vinyl). Pole pockets are not available). Adding pole pockets will slightly increase the cost of your banner. Your banner size includes the pole pockets. As an example, a 24" high banner will have approximately 18" of space for your design if you were to select top and bottom pole pockets. If you need an exact amount of space for your design, we recommend adding 3-6" to your size to account for your pole pockets. If you need an exact amount of space for your design, we recommend adding 3-6" to your size to account for your pole pockets. If you need an exact amount of space for your design, we recommend adding 3-6" to your size to account for your pole pockets. If you need an exact amount of space for your design if you were to select top and bottom pole pockets. If you need an exact amount of space for your design if you were to select top and bottom pole pockets. Velcro banners make an already versatile sign option into a sign that can be adapted for many purposes. We've produced Velcro banners for parades, sponsorships banners, annual sales and more. In all of these cases the majority of the banner remains the same year to year but a certain part is built with velcro so it can be switched as needed. Banners with Velcro will have a Velcro portion as part of the actual banner itself. Additionally, customers oftentimes buy replaceable smaller banners (i.e. 24"x24") with Velcro on the back side of the smaller banners. Do you sell banners with wind slits? What should I know about them and the ordering process? No, we not sell banners with slits. We've found that wind slits, which are designed to lessen the impact of high winds on a banner often are ineffective in protecting a banner against high winds. We recommend that banners be taken down if extreme weather is imminent. If you live where high winds are frequent, we would recommend our mesh banners instead. Do you offer mesh, canvas, flag or fabric banners? We do offer fabric banners, mesh banners, and custom flags. If you are interested in a banner type that is not listed on our website, please contact us and provide the details and materials you're looking for and we will do our best to help you. Do you sell vinyl banners with an adhesive backing or double-sided tape? No, we currently don't offer vinyl banners for a double-sided banner or you can request a custom quote for a double-sided banner. You do also have the option of using department store adhesive are they're sticky, messy and hard to remove once you've used them. Are the pole pockets sewn on the banner? Pole pockets are pre-sewn onto the banner, meaning there is no assembly required when you receive your banner. Do pole pockets affect the design area of my banner? Including pole pockets on your banner will not change the design area of your banner. As noted elsewhere, we recommend keeping text and design inside of the dotted lines that indicate the location of your pole pockets. This is the safest way to ensure your banner displays without text or design elements appearing somewhere that is not visible. If more design area is needed we recommend ordering a bigger banner so that you can avoid putting design elements inside the marked pole pockets while on the design tool. Are poles included when I choose the pole pocket option? Poles to display your banner are not included with banner purchases. At this time we do not offer poles. We anticipate offering them in the near future. Suitable poles can be wood, metal, or plastic so long as they are under 3" in diameter. We recommend using poles less than 1.5" to ensure the pole fits without having to force it through the pocket. Can my custom banner come with a banner stand? Can I make it a retractable or a pop-up banner? There is no way to make your vinyl banner are exactly what the banner stand requires. The better option is to simply buy a retractable banner on our website for your indoor needs. Our retractable banners come with a stand and a traveling case. Installation & Care How do I hang my banner you can use zip ties, bungee cords, rope, string or any other durable material. These can be affixed to posts, chain link fences or anywhere else that presents a sturdy anchor. We also recommend that all grommets be used when hanging your banner so the many ways in which banners can be installed, we do not provide any accessories to hang your banner but all of these things can be found at your local hardware store. If you include pole pockets with your banner you can use flag poles or rods to display your banner. We recommend using poles that are less than 1.5" in diameter in order to properly fit in the pole pocket (larger poles may not slide easily into the pole pocket). Rope can also be used to hang banners with pole pockets, although we have found that utilizing poles will result in a nicer looking banner. How do I store my banners are built to withstand the elements and to be placed outside, it's sometimes necessary or simply desirable to remove and store them for a certain period of time. When storing your banner we recommend that you roll them with the print side facing out. Do not fold them. The banners should be kept in a dry area at room temperature. Avoid storing the banners in extremely hot or humid rooms or locations. Also, do not store anything on top of the banners in extremely hot or humid rooms or locations. Also, do not store anything on top of the banners in extremely hot or humid rooms or locations. Also, do not store anything on top of the banners in extremely hot or humid rooms or locations. being shipped or stored, vinyl banners often have creases or wrinkles. To easily remove the wrinkles from your banner simply place them in the hot sun for a few hours and the wrinkles and creases should come right out. How do I wash my banner? Vinyl banners can easily be washed with a wet rag and warm water. Avoid washing the banners with bags, bean bag chairs and other things that can be reused or upcycled. Some companies repurpose and give to someone else. Many cities also allow you to put them in your recycling bin rather than your garbage bin. Find answers from others and ask your own questions? Each of the contract o confusion that may exist around the different phrases used for this and similar banner" are all interchangeable. The use of these terms is usually dictated by who is speaking and their preference or habit of calling them one or the other. In terms of functionality, pricing etc. these terms all mean the same to us. For simplicity's sake we just use "feather banners, (closest to feather banners but slightly different shape and different pricing), standard banners, fabric banners, and retractable banners. The differences between the two most similar banner options that can be quickly noted are that the feather banner which is more free flowing than the teardrop banner which is more taut and stretched out when secured to its flagpole. Further, the design surface area of the feather banner is also larger when secured to its flagpole. Further, the design surface area of the feather banner is also larger than the teardrop of a similar size. What material, which has a plastic-like property, allows for flexibility and durability of the product. The flagpole is made of lightweight aluminum, which adds to the versatility of this unique banner. Occasionally I hear the phrase, "feather convex mean? Convex mean. banner faster than if the banner is kept away from those conditions. Will exposure to sun fade the banner is placed in direct sunlight, the banner is placed in direct sunlight, the banner will end up fading over time. Though, this will require a prolonged period of direct sunlight. In almost all cases this shouldn't be a concern over the short or medium term. Will the wind blow my feather flag banner away? Strong gusts of wind can cause the banner to be blown away even when anchored to the ground. Even with a weighted base, the flagpole could still be bent or harmed in heavy winds. The height of the flag is also a factor in its resistance to the wind. A larger flag is more likely to be windblown. We recommend that you take down the flag, regardless of size, in inclement weather conditions. How small or big can my feather flag banners: Small (9') Medium (10.5') Large (14') X-Large (18') These heights represent the flag banner when it is attached to the flagpole, which is the industry standard when measuring feather banners. The actual banner dimensions alone are 24.25" W x 79.5" H (Small), 25.5" W x 105" H (Medium), 29.5" W x 139.5" H (Large). When using different bases, the height of the flag banner may also vary. Using the square base will only add about 1/8th of an inch to the overall height of the flag. The ground stake will also add height depending on how much it is driven into the ground. The cross base will add about 7" to the overall height of the banner sizes? Each flagpole is specifically designed to support one banner size. For example, a large flagpole will not support a small medium, or XL banner. A large flagpole will only support a large banner. This applies to all banners and flagpole sizes. If you need to order an extra or replacement feather banner, you can do so on our website. Can I order a replacement feather banner, you can do so on our website. Can I order a replacement feather banner as a standalone item through our website. If you need a replacement pole set, stand, or other hardware please contact us at support@signs.com or 888-222-4929 so we can help you with your order. Will I be charged more if I print my banner in more than one color? We print all our banners in full color, which means there will be no extra charge no matter how many colors you include in your design. Design services are also free if you need help with creating your banner. The factors that will impact your final cost will be the size you select, quantity, type of stand, and any applicable taxes and shipping fees. Will my design cover the entire feather flag banner or just a portion of it? The design of your banner will cover most of the flag. The face of the flag, where the design will be printed, is surrounded by a 2 to 21/2-inch-thick black seam (or border) which connects the pole pocket to the rest of the flag. Are your banners a matte or gloss finish? The vinyl banner material is a matte finish, with the printed design also being matte in appearance. Will my banner melt if placed in direct sunlight or high temperatures? The vinyl material we use is heat resistant, meaning that it will not melt if placed in direct sunlight for an extended period. Normal day to day usage should not cause any problems in terms of melting. Are your banners fire-resistant? Though highly resistant to heat, polyester will melt and burn when it comes in contact with flames. We caution against placing the banner? Our templates are provided for your convenience, but they are not necessary in designing your banner. If you wish to use your own design, you can upload it using our designing your banner, feel free to ask for our help at no extra cost. Is the single-sided option for feather flag banners mirrored or print through? If you select a single-sided feather flag banner, please note that it is a print-through rather than duplicated on the back side. This means that people will see your printed design from the other side but the design and the text will be mirrored. If you want to show the same message on both the front and back sides of the banner, please select the double-sided option for your order. Can your feather flag banners be printed double-sided? Yes. We offer double-sided printing for feather banners for an additional cost. Can I use different images for the two sides of a double-sided banner? Yes. You can either design your banner so that both sides bear the same message or use different designs for each side. Simply select the "Printed Sides" option and click the "Back Side" button to design the back side of your flag however you'd like. Will I get a pole set if I order a single or a double-sided banner? No. For your banner to work, you'll need to design the banner and then select poles and preferred stand as additional options. We implement this system to allow customers to purchase replacement banners in the future. How big is the ground stake? Can it be placed in loose or thick soil? The ground stake is 25 inches long (about 2 feet), solid piece of metal which attaches to the bottom of the flagpole. The stake can be driven into the ground stake? thick soil to ensure that it is not easily swayed by strong winds. There isn't a specific depth to which you should drive the stake, rather simply drive the stake until the feather banner feels secure and sturdy. What's the difference between the square base and the cross base? The square base is a solid piece of metal that secures a flag with a peg. It weighs 21 lbs., giving you assurance that it will keep your outdoor banner grounded. Because the base is flush with the ground, it is less likely to become a tripping hazard. It is advisable to install the square base in a permanent location rather than moving it about because it does not fit in the carrying bag for the flag banner. The cross base has four foldable legs that allow for easy storage in the carrying case. The portability of cross base makes it ideal for conventions and trade shows. It weighs 6.4 lbs., which gives it stability on the ground but will not break your back while transporting it. You can add the water bag weight (an additional 16 lbs., when filled with water) on the cross base to increase its support when placing the flag outdoors. The profile of the cross base does increase the risk of pedestrian or passers-by tripping on the display, so it's best to place the display out of footpaths. What is the water bag? Can it be filled water bag? Can it be filled water bag is a donut-shaped weight device that can be filled water. This weight is used with the cross base to increase stability. Though designed to be filled with water, the bag could be also filled with sand. However, we recommend that you use water to allow for easy emptying of the bag and subsequent transport. Your banner can become faded or worn if exposed in direct sunlight for an extended period much like any other printed material, or if the banner material is in frequent contact with an abrasive surface. Installation & Care How do I assemble my feather banner? Assembling the feather flag banner is straightforward. When assembling the flag, take the largest pole into the end with the small knob at the end. This will be the topmost part of your completed flagpole. Carefully place the flag onto the pole by sliding the pole through the bottom pocket of the flag. Once the flag material is attached to the pole into the stake or base, take the small cord from the flagpole and thread it through the small loop at the bottom of the flag material. Insert the cord into the metal ring at the bottom of the flagpole. Tie a knot, securing your flag and pole together. Now you're ready to place your assembled flag either into or on the ground. The bungee for my banner broke, how do I fix this? Unfortunately, we do not offer a replacement bungee at the time. While this small bungee helps keep the banner taut it isn't critical to the flag functioning properly. Assuming the fabric and metal hooks are not broken, any other rope or small bungee will work in the same manner. If one of the hooks is broken, any other rope or small bungee will work in the same manner. together?
